

Transcript

(00:00:00) Janet Boller

My name is Janet Boller. I am a licensed clinical psychologist and I'm the advocate for sexual misconduct.

(00:00:07) Janet Boller

What people tell me is confidential and that is true for the advocate as well. So, if students are reporting about things that happen to them, I'm not a mandatory reporter for those types of allegations and I can keep that information confidential.

(00:00:22) Janet Boller

I don't need to report it to Lauren Kosack or anyone else, unless the student wants me to or wants me to assist with that process, in which case certainly that is something I would do.

(00:00:31) Janet Boller

Pointing at the Sexual Misconduct Website on her computer

So, this is our website that has our sexual harassment, sexual assault, stalking, dating and domestic violence resources and you'll see Lauren Kozak here has a video and she talks just for a minute and a half about it. You know some information related to her office.

(00:00:48) Janet Boller

You can report an incident here or over here. Pointing at the report an incident button on the website

(00:00:52) Janet Boller

There are frequently asked questions. If you're the subject of a report or learning about options, and if you click here where it says I want support. I believe this takes you to resources, including the counseling center including Project Horizon, which is our local shelter and hotline.

(00:01:10) Lauren Kozak

You know, students may report and watch supportive measures, but not necessarily want to proceed with a formal complaint, and that is generally going to be up to them.

00:01:18 Lauren Kozak

There are very limited circumstances in which the university would need to file a formal complaint without their consent, but those are going to be somewhat limited. We try to keep that limited because the person who is the complainant has control over how they want that report to proceed in most circumstances.